At Ainscough Industrial Group, we want to do the right things, in the right way. That means we all take responsibility for everything we do as a business. We are responsible to the key “stakeholders” who include our investors, our customers, our employees, our suppliers and the communities where we operate.

When we act responsibly it means we make people’s health and safety our first priority; we operate within the law and with integrity; we treat people with respect; we think about and minimise the impact we have on the environment; and we try to make a real difference to the communities where we work, through charitable support and other initiatives. We believe this approach will help our business grow

Ainscough Industrial Group is a responsible company, as it promotes the optimum utilisation of goods and services and uses resources efficiently. This provides an excellent foundation for our process of making continuous improvements in corporate social responsibility.

Ainscough Industrial Group is committed to actions and not words. Our approach to improving our environmental and social impacts will be supported by the relevant accreditations and independent verification wherever practical, and we will look to collaborate with our customers, suppliers and wider stakeholders to assist in maximizing our positive impacts.

Ainscough Industrial Group has a history of business integrity, transparency and a commitment to making a positive social impact. This will remain at the heart of our commitment to the responsible business agenda.

Responsibility is part of the fabric of Ainscough Industrial Group,

(Health and Safety). This reflects our commitment to action not words, putting the structures in place, which allow us to live our values and deliver against them to externally verified models.

For the Board it is more than just accreditations, it is behaviours, respect for our people, our environment, our customers, our suppliers and the communities in which we operate. Good health and safety, environmental management, and customer service are as much attitudes as policies, and at Ainscough Industrial Group we look to live and breathe our values.
